FLY TIME.

Wading in paint on a lady's cheek,
Leaving behind a torthrous streak,
Accursed fly! From the hell below
Never come pest that plagues us so,
Dancing,
Nibbling,
Fresh from the sty,
The horrible sty where the porkers lie.

Even the dogs with a snarl and a bound, Snap at the insects that swarm around. The air is blue with oaths that try To drown the hum of the hateful fly.

And that's the end of the sleeper's nap.

Once I was pious, but fell from grace-Played the knave open, and copper ace; Made of myself a terrible guy When the devil caught me out on the fly.

How strange it is that women will try To kill with cobalt this villainous fly; How strange it seems when a million

To find the multitude double again.

Whisking. Frisking. With clammy feet,

Hunting us out in quiet retreat

If at the fly like Toby we swear, And the angel recorder enters it there, Give us, then, the welcome doubt That the tear of mercy will blot it out.

The statement of other transfers we propose to give as soon as received.—Detroit Post.

On Thursday evening last an old sailor, minus a leg, applied for a night's lodging, on the plea he had retused to proceed that evening with the schooner Eric from this port, coal laden for Detroit, he having seen a rat swim ashore from the boat while it lay in dock; and this he claimed to be an unfailing omen of disaster in the ideas of sea going men. He was accommodated and the next morning the news was received in Sandusky that the Erie, which left the previous night, had only got some three miles off the cast end of Kelley's Island when she sank; the schooner sank about 1 a. M., and the unfortunate men were beating about until near 5 o'clock, when the propeller Huron City sighted them and rescued them from their perilous position,—Sandusky Journal.

How is This For High?—Wm. Haydn, let also there are few changes and during the of the Globe Mills, has just received the week there has been no marked fluctuations. We week there has been no marked fluctuations. We were driven ashore Saturday morning last about six miles below Port Dalhousie, Lake Ontario. The former, in order to save her from going to pieces, was scuttled. The latter, it is stated, will be got off without serious injury. The schooner Richardson, of Kingston, a vessel of 163 tons burden, laden with corn, went ashore at Presque Island, Lake Ontario, a portion of her cargo being damaged. Parties are at work getting her afloat.
